Who has access when and to which room? With the Kentix DoorLock®, you have full control: With different variants of locking components and individual time-user profiles, you can set up an access solution exactly according to your needs in no time at all. Thanks to the connection to the Kentix360 Cloud, you always have an overview of all your rooms - at any time and even while on the move via app for smartphone or tablet. And should a problem arise, Kentix will inform you immediately and reliably so that you can act as quickly as possible. What makes the Kentix online access system so special is its simple networking and integration into IT networks. Retrofitting is uncomplicated and possible without special tools or additional structural measures. The Kentix DoorLock® includes both radio-controlled and wired components that can be easily combined to form a centrally managed system. This means that large and small access systems can be implemented for every requirement with little installation effort. Access control with video recording When booking at the locking component, an IP camera can be controlled simultaneously to record a series of images. This is stored together with the personal data. Unauthorised access attempts are forwarded directly to those responsible via e-mail and video attachment.
