The system logbook lists messages that have been triggered by changes or influences on the system (e.g. changes to alarm thresholds). The logbook does not contain any alarms or warnings, but is used exclusively for logging system events.